enjoy sun, sea and spread betting millions

VINCE STANZIONE HAS THE LOT: THE LUXURY apartment in Mallorca, the sun, sea and sand lifestyle and millions in the bank. And he does it all from the privacy and comfort of his own home, spending just a few minutes each day on the trading system he created himself.

But at first it was really hard work: "I shut myself away from the outside world and beavered away like some crazy professor, convinced that I was onto something huge," he says. "I would find myself totally engrossed and captivated, oblivious to everything else around me, often ending up working excitedly through the night and well into the small hours.

"Indeed, many times I would find myself still at my computer at 3am in the morning, going through formulas, systems, spreadsheets and calculations as I searched to find the best trading opportunities and as I tested every aspect of it in minute detail. And I continued like this for months."

But then he had a 'eureka!' moment. Stanzone saw that by making a few clever adjustments to his trading system, the already cash-generative mechanism became super profitable and was even easier to operate: "I discovered that I was making 80 per cent of my profits from just 20 per cent of my original system. This realisation allowed me to distil my original system to the bare essentials required to make fantastic profits, for very little work."

A 12-month running test generated a staggering £10,000 per week

Stanzone claims that the adjustments allowed him to do in 20 to 30 minutes what would have occupied him for six months in his 'mad professor' days. The essence of his system, he says, was to create ten trading 'keys': "Basically, the keys would virtually automatically tell me when to buy and when to sell," says Stanzone. "But before I ran it live myself and before I told anyone about this 10-Key System I decided to first test it out on a demo account ... just to be 100 per cent sure. After a few weeks it was clear that I really did have something quite unique."

Stanzone is an experienced trader. He left school at 16 and was soon trading for banks such as NatWest. Now aged 38, he has been trading full time for 20 years. So if anyone knows about risk, it's Stanzone. Even though he saw that the 10-Key System was something special, he decided to do a 12-month running test before rolling it out to the world. He managed to generate a staggering £10,000 per week.

The system relates to spread betting – in very crude terms, if you think a market is going up you buy the spread, or sell if you feel it's going down. Stanzone has made fortunes from accounts with the likes of long-established firms such as IG Index.

Stanzone shares his knowledge with those who are serious about wanting to work from home to create wealth.
